TABLE 13–3 Examples of Word Recognition Tests That Use Phoneme, Word, and Sentence Stimuli for Children*

TEST	AUTHOR(S)	STIMULUS TYPE	STIMULUS UNITS	RESPONSE FORMAT	TARGET POPULATION
Speech Pattern Contrast Test (SPAC)	Boothroyd (1984)	Phoneme (also includes test of suprasegmental contrasts, such as word stress)	Words and phrases	Closed set	Children age 10 years and older
Audiovisual Feature Test	Tyler, Fryauf-Bertschy, and Kelsey (1991)	Phoneme	Rhyming words, including b, c, d, key, me, knee	Closed set (10-choice)	Children
Nonsense Syllable Test (NST)	Edgerton and Danhauer (1979)	Phoneme	Nonsense bisyllables	Open set	Children and adults
Minimal Pairs Test	Robbins, Renshaw, Miyamoto, Osberger, and Pope (1988)	Phoneme	Monosyllabic word pairs (e.g., pair vs. bear)	Closed set (2-choice)	Children, about age 4 years and older
Auditory Numbers Test (ANT)	Erber (1980)	Word	Numbers	Closed set (5-choice)	Children
Northwestern University Children's Perception of Speech (NU-CHIPS)	Elliott and Katz (1980)	Word	Monosyllables constructed with the most frequently occurring phonemes in the English language, such as fork, dog	Closed set (4-choice)	Children who have the receptive language abilities of age 2.6 years or older
Word Intelligibility by Picture Identification (WIPI)	Ross and Lerman (1971)	Word	Monosyllabic words, such as bear, pear, stair, chair, ear, hair	Closed set (6-choice)	Children ages 5–6 years with speech recognition skills associated with moderate hearing loss; ages 7–8 years with severe hearing loss
Phonetically Balanced Kindergarten (PBK)	Haskins (1949)	Word	Monosyllabic words preceded by the carrier phrase Say the word	Open set	Children 6 years and older
Early-Speech Perception Test (ESP)	Moog and Geers (1990)	Word	Words varying in number of syllables	Closed set	Children 6 years and older
Early-Speech Perception Test (ESP)–Low Verbal Version	Moog and Geers (1990)	Word	Words varying in number of syllables	Closed set	Children 2 years of age or when vocabulary has been developed
Lexical Neighborhood Test (LNT)	Kirk, Pisoni, and Osberger (1995)	Word	Words, some of which are lexically "easy" and some of which are lexically "hard," with easy words having few other word choices that are phonetically similar (e.g., thought, live) and hard words having many words that are similar (e.g., mole, wed)	Open set	Children
Children's Realistic Index of Speech Perception (CRISP)	Litovsky (2003)	Word	25 spondees presented in the presence of two competing sentences	Closed set (four-choice)	Children

(continues)